The Tower of Gaia

"AAAAAAUUUUUUUUUGGGHHHHHHH!!!!!!"

It was the scream that roused Matthew from his sleep (and he'd been having such a lovely dream too, it involved Sveta, Karis and Hou Ju, but if I told you what the dream involved, then I would have to put the rating up, sorry!) and he immediately grabbed his sword, fearing an attack by monsters.

Except it was just Tyrell, dripping wet in his bed, while an angry Karis stood over him with her hands on her hips.

"I was trying to get you to wake up for the past ten minutes!" Karis screamed shrilly. "When I tell you to wake up, you wake up!"

"You didn't have to throw water all over me!"

"Well, maybe you should stop being such a lazy oaf if you don't want to get wet!"

"That's it! I've had it with your bossiness! I am going to make you shut your mouth, you BEEP!!!"

Tyrell tried to punch Karis, but Karis grabbed his wrist and flipped him over her head. She threw him to the ground and stomped on his back, breaking his spine in several places. He screamed like an agonised Mars Adept whose spine had been broken in several places.

"You're an idiot!!!!!!" Karis screamed at Tyrell, kicking him in the head and leaving the room.

Tyrell continued to scream in pain until Rief came to heal him.

Eoleo came into the room and told everyone to "shut your BEEPing traps, you BEEPing BEEPers!" They did so, because Eoleo could be scary in the morning. He took a swig of rum and headed out to the deck. Everyone else followed him up.

Himi floated around, her eyes glowing eerily. "The voices are speaking to atashi again. They are telling me that atashi-tachi must proceed to the Tower of Gaia. It only appears to the people of Weyard once every one thousand years. This is where the Venus Clan resides, desu."

"The Venus Clan resides in a tower? That only appears once every thousand years?" Amiti asked.

"Why would anyone live in a tower like that?" Tyrell inquired.

"I cannot believe that there is such a thing as a tower that only appears once every thousand years," said Rief.

"Where does it go when we can't see it?" Karis pondered.

"What do we got to see this tower for anyway?" Eoleo wondered.

"The Venus Clan lives in such a tower? How peculiar," Sveta remarked.

"Gasp! I have heard of the Tower of Gaia!" Kraden exclaimed.

Everyone turned to Kraden.

"You have heard of the Tower of Gaia?" Tyrell asked.

"Amazing! Kraden knows about the Tower of Gaia!" Karis exclaimed. "And here we've never even heard of it."

"Master Kraden truly does know everything," said Rief.

"Everything?" Eoleo repeated. "Hmm, that might be true."

"Yeah," Amiti mumbled, suddenly becoming aware of the pirate's rippling muscles. He promptly forgot about everything else and stared at them, drool sliding out the corner of his mouth.

"What do you know about it, Kraden?" asked Sveta.

"I know that it is a tower that appears to the people of Weyard once every thousand years and it is where the Venus Clan resides."

Matthew stared at him in disbelief. "Himi just told us that!"

"Well, I'm afraid I don't know any more than that." Kraden shrugged.

"Okay, so where is the Tower of Gaia?" asked Tyrell.

"Himi, can you tell us where it is?" Amiti asked.

"If we are to get there, we need to know where it is," said Karis.

"If you could tell us where-" Rief started.

"SHUT UP THE BEEP UP!" Matthew screamed. "Just let her tell us where it is already! I'm sick of all your goddamned repeating and so are the readers! I bet they are throwing their computers out of the window in disgust now!"

(a/n: oh right they don't know what computers are yet lol well whatever, hope ya don't mind the random fourth wall breaking hehe)

Himi responded, "The Tower of Gaia is located near Venus Lighthouse. Was that really so hard to figure out, you bakas?"

"Wait, how are we supposed to get there?" Eoleo asked. "Gondowan and the Venus Lighthouse are located beyond the waterfalls that surround Angara."

Mocking laughter suddenly flowed toward the Adepts, startling them. They turned around to see Alex casually standing on the edge of the ship, his long blue hair flowing in the wind.

"So you plan to go to the Tower of Gaia, do you?" Alex asked. "Good luck getting there on this boat."

"Alex!" The Adepts yelled in unison.

"It's you, Alex!" said Kraden. "What are you up to now?"

"I thought I would pay a little visit and see how you were all doing," Alex responded. "I will be going to the Tower of Gaia myself. However, I wonder if you will even be able to make it there." He laughed again.

"What do you plan to do when you are there?" Karis asked.

"That's a secret," Alex replied. "Actually, there was one other thing I came to do."

"What's that?" inquired Sveta.

"Do you lot ever stop asking questions?" Alex warped out. He warped in again and they heard a choked gasp. Everyone saw Alex standing behind Rief, sticking a sword into him. (A/N: Oh yeah, guess I should tell you, this fic contains character death!)

"You disgust me," Alex said in a voice filled with loathing. "I cannot believe that someone as lovely as Mia could have produced this nerdy Kraden wannabe." He drew his sword out of the dying Mercury Adept and flung him over the side of the ship. Rief hit the water with a loud splash and sank into the sea.

Everyone stared in horror with their mouths hanging wide open.

"Well, I guess that settles it," Kraden said. "We'd better find Captain Piers. His flying ship will get us to the Tower of Gaia. That, and Nowell will make an excellent replacement for Rief."

"Wait, what about my ship?" Eoleo asked. "Are we just going to abandon it?"

"Unless you can get wings for your ship, we'll have to," said Kraden.

"Okay, let's go find Captain Piers right now!" Karis said. "Matthew, get sailing!"

"Oh my god, woman, do you ever stop telling others what to do?" Tyrell asked. Karis punched him in the face.

And so, Matthew started sailing. Everyone else pissed around and did whatever they did on the ship when they were bored. Alex cried because everyone forgot about him and he left.

Tyrell sneaked into the kitchen to eat some bread. Unfortunately, Karis caught him again. There was screaming and violence (on Karis's part) and a lot of swearing. Tyrell was thrown out of the kitchen, covered in bruises.

He slunk onto the deck to find Matthew not sailing the ship. Instead, he was currently engrossed in poking and prodding Himi, who had taken up a spot on the deck, to try and get a reaction out of her. She was sitting and staring into the distance with her eyes glazed over. The only indication she was alive was the rise and fall of her chest.

"Hey, Matthew." Tyrell sat down next to him.

Matthew turned his gaze to Tyrell and cocked his head.

"I... I have a confession to make..."

Tyrell suddenly realised that Himi was there. "Um, Himi, could you let us talk in private?"

Himi continued to stare blankly ahead.

"Himi?" Tyrell waved a hand in her face.

Himi still stared blankly ahead.

"Hey, Himi, Kraden likes to wear women's underwear."

Himi didn't even so much as bat an eyelash.

"Dude, what the hell is up with this creepy chick? Well, whatever. Matthew... I am madly in love with Karis! What should I do? I'm afraid she might reject me." Tyrell sniffled. "I really want Karis to love me back."

Matthew raised an eyebrow. "Dude, didn't you try to punch her this morning?"

"Did I? Er, heh heh heh... guess my temper was running a little high. Anyway, I bet she's forgotten about it already. What should I do?"

"You are a baka," Himi spoke up suddenly. "Karis would never pick someone like you."

"Augh! She heard me!" Tyrell wailed.

"Now, if you will excuse me, I must go share your himitsu with minna on this ship, desu." Himi rose to her feet and calmly walked away.

Tyrell looked at Matthew in confusion. "Who's minna? What the heck is a himitsu?"

Matthew replied, "That is the language of Nihan, you dolt. Everyone knows it."

"Hmph! Well... you know what? I'm going to prove that creepy brat wrong!" Tyrell clenched a fist. "I'll show her that Karis will pick me!" He stomped off into the cabin.

Matthew followed him, quite eager to see this trainwreck for himself.

Tyrell found Karis and Sveta snuggled up on the couch together, reading a romantic novel. Every so often, they would gaze longingly into each other's eyes. Somehow, he failed to notice the mood between the two.

"Karis!" Tyrell exclaimed. "I have something to tell you. I... I am madly in love with you! Please tell me that you love me as well!"

Karis stared at him for several minutes then she died laughing. (a/n: no she didn't really die)

Sveta pounced on Tyrell with a demonic look in her eyes. "I am the only one for Karis," she hissed in a menacing voice. "Nobody is allowed to profess their love for him, nobody. She is mine!" The beastman transformed into her wolf form and ripped Tyrell's limbs off.

"OH MY GOD!" Matthew screamed.

Eoleo walked in, taking a swig of rum, and raised an eyebrow at Tyrell, who was now bleeding all over the floor. "Thank god there's no carpet."

Amiti came into the room, moaning and drooling. "Eoleo... you're so hawt. Have sex with me now."

Eoleo looked at him then shrugged. "Sure, why not." He threw the Ayuthayan prince over his shoulder and walked off.

Karis and Sveta decided to do the same thing and left.

Matthew cast Potent Cure on Tyrell and made him all better.

"Matthew, I was wrong!" Tyrell gasped out. "As I was lying there, bleeding to death with my life flashing before my eyes, I realised... it wasn't really Karis I was in love with! It was you, Matthew!"

Matthew gasped as well. "Oh, Tyrell... I am madly in love with you as well!"

Matthew and Tyrell kissed passionately.

Himi stood in the doorway, staring at them with a bored expression. "Yare yare," she muttered, turning and leaving.

(Will the Adepts ever get to the Tower of Gaia? To be continued!)
